

Svend Svend

Human Fighter (Level 4) - BECMI

Physical Description

Svend stands a towering 6'10" with a broad, muscular frame that ripples under his sparse leather armor. His red hair and beard are wild and wind-torn, giving him a rugged, almost feral appearance. Deep scars crisscross his arms, evidence of years of hard labor and countless battles in the wilderness.

Personality

Stubborn to a fault, Svend rarely backs down from a challenge and speaks with a gruff, no-nonsense tone. He has a habit of tapping his axe on the ground when deep in thought, and he often mutters to himself about the weight of the world. Despite his rough exterior, he shows a quiet reverence for nature and a fierce protectiveness toward those he considers kin.

Background

Born in a frontier village, Svend's parents perished during a brutal winter famine, leaving him to learn the art of woodcutting at a young age. He left home to join a merchant caravan, honing his survival skills across harsh terrains. After years of wandering, a local baron hired him to clear timber for a summer house, where he uncovered a map to a forgotten temple. The map hinted at a black mirror and a special dagger, propelling him into a quest that could alter the fate of the world.

DM Only - Secrets

He knows the black mirror holds the key to averting a looming apocalypse, but he cannot reveal this truth without risking the wrath of the black dragon and the Count who seek the mirror.

DM Only - Motivations

Svend is driven by a desperate desire to prevent the end of the world, a mission he keeps secret out of fear that admitting it would endanger him and those he protects.
